Reich To Serve Ultimatum

(By Associated Press)

The British admiralty claimed victory today in the greatest sea battle of the war—a 3-day clash in the eastern Mediterranean in which 1,500 Italians were believed to have perished amid the sinking of five Fascist warships.

More than 1,000 Italian survivors have been picked up, the admiralty announced.

Italy acknowledged the loss of three cruisers and two destroyers in the Mediterranean sea battle, which the British described as the royal navy's outstanding triumph of the war.

Premier Mussolini's high command said a heavy British cruiser was sunk and two other British warships were "seriously damaged". In London, the admiralty said no British ships had been damaged and no casualties suffered.

The admiralty said serious damage also was inflicted on an Italian battleship of the 35,000-ton Littorio class by aerial torpedoes. Meanwhile, Germany sounded a warning to Yugoslavia over the "vagueness" of that Balkan kingdom's position. Since 17-year-old King Peter II overthrew his pro-Axis government by a military coup d'etat last week.

Will Serve Ultimatum

A German source in Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, said the Reich intended to wait only until the last of its 16,000 to 20,000 nationals had left the country before serving an ultimatum.

The ultimatum, it was said, would carry a short time-limit demanding the demobilization of the Yugoslav army, now estimated at 1,200,000 men under arms. Failure to demobilize would precipitate immediate hostilities, the source said.

Midnight tonight was reported to be the deadline for all German nationals to leave the kingdom.

Authorized quarters in Berlin said Germany had shown "unexampled patience" in determining the facts regarding Yugoslavia. But that the Balkan nation "must realize there can be an end to this magnanimity."

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 31.—The head of the U. S. labor department conciliation service said today that "it seems to be only a miracle could prevent a stoppage of the bituminous coal mines tonight," as miners and operators approached a midnight deadline in their negotiations on a new contract.

"But miracles sometimes happen," added the conciliator, Dr. John R. Steelman, after he conferred with representatives of both sides from the 8-state Appalachian area which sets the wage-hour standards for the rest of the nation's soft coal field.

The work stoppage is set for midnight when the old contract expires, unless an agreement is reached.

At the end of the morning session, Steelman announced that "everything is status quo." There was no comment from either the miners or the operators, who went into separate sessions during the noon recess.

"I am faintly clinging to hope," said John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America (U. M. W.), who has instructed 330,000 miners in the Appalachian field not to work without a contract or without assurance any forthcoming benefits would be retroactive to April 1.

Public "40 Years"
Behind The Artist,
Is Expert's Opinion

Citing as "unfortunate" the circumstance that the general public is "nearly 40 years behind the artist," Miss Margaret Evans, art director of Youngstown college, comments that "it is the responsibility of the public to understand what the artist is trying to express."

Miss Evans' comments were made following a lecture on "Art Today" at the public library here Friday night before a group of more than 50 Salem artists, friends of art and visiting members of the Mahoning Society of Artists.

Urges "Open Mind"

Miss Evans' urges the observer "to look at pictures with an open mind, allowing himself to respond to other things in the picture and subject matter, to value personality and imagination." As a final step in his endeavor the art director urges him "to get paper and paint and to gain some art experience himself."

The Youngstown art instructor's lecture here was given in connection with the exhibit of paintings at the library, by members of the Mahoning Society of Artists, which visitors have been enjoying for more than a week. Discussion and study of the pictures by the public and artists from this district who have shown much interest in the display is evidence of the success of the first such showing in Salem.

Civil Liberties Members of Senate File Report On 1937 Trouble

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The senate civil liberties committee today blamed the bloody "Little Steel" strike of 1937 on the "uncompromising refusal" of the "independent" producers to bargain with their workers.

The committee further declared that any company which today declines "under all circumstances" to enter into a signed bargaining contract is "endangering the national security."

Reporting on its protracted study of the stubbornly fought strikes in the plants of the Bethlehem, Republic, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube companies almost four years ago, the committee told the senate they had a "peculiar relevance to the problems of industrial protection and national defense, which challenged the nation today."

The committee held that the "Little Steel" strikes might easily have been avoided, and then stated: "Certain it is that the nation cannot permit these companies to today to take the same attitude they took in 1937 with the same inevitable consequences of interrupted production."

"Any company which today stands up and flatly refuses to enter into a signed bargaining contract under all circumstances, and any employer association which supports and assists it in such a position are endangering the national security."

"Such conduct not only threatens the national security," the committee said.

Extensive Damage, Result
Of Sabotage, Reported
On Italian Ships

(By Associated Press)

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON, March 31.—Heading toward the capital to expedite a $7,000,000,000 program of aid to embattled democracies, President Roosevelt indicated today that he personally had ordered seizure of Axis ships in U. S. ports.

Holding a brief press conference at Fort Jackson, S. C., he declined to comment on weekend seizure of German, Italian and Danish vessels. But when asked whether it had been done at his specific direction, he old reporters he thought they could make certain assumptions.

Seizure of the ships and authorizing transfer of another consignment of weapons to Greece and Britain made it apparent the chief executive already had begun implementing his announced policy of "action and more action."

Additional steps were in prospect soon after return to the White House tomorrow in his program against those he has termed "the most brutal warmongers of all time."

70 Ships Seized

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Seventy German, Italian and Danish ships were seized by armed forces of the United States over the weekend to protect them against acts of sabotage by their crews.

The treasury made public a compilation covering 28 Italian, two German and 36 Danish ships taken into custody by the coast guard and the army and navy in ports of the United States and the Panama canal zone. Four other Danish vessels were taken over by the navy in Philippine waters.

The treasury said that the crews had been removed from the 66 vessels included in its announcements. The coast guard is a unit of the treasury.

The saboteurs, reported by the treasury to have resulted in extensive damage to at least 20 Italian ships, spread to Central America today when crews set fire to one German and one Italian ship in Costa Rica.

A preliminary inspection showed that almost all of the Italian vessels taken over had been rendered useless by "wholesale sabotage," government authorities said.

That a violent Axis protest would be forthcoming was taken for granted in informed quarters, and the belief was that the dramatic events of the week-end had brought relations between the United States and the Axis powers close to an open rupture.

German and Italian authorities here maintained a stony silence, pending instructions from the foreign office, but the master of

THE MANLY ART

For the home of the world's heavyweight boxing champion and the industry of scrambling ears for heavy purses, America harbors many strange notions about the manly art of self-defense.

Take, for instance, the argument about whether or not this government will use its vessels to convoy other vessels carrying aid to Britain. When did self-defense ever call for refusing to use one hand to help the other? If aid to Britain, now a national policy, is for defense, it follows that convoys to make the aid reach Britain, instead of the bottom of the ocean, will be used if they become necessary—for defense.

Or, take aid to Britain, itself, even though that question has been settled. A few Americans still hold that defense is a process of making a last-ditch stand, leaving initiative to the opposition, the way France did it. Presumably, they think the British are wrong by fighting in the Mediterranean. Instead of sitting tightly on their tight little island and waiting for invasion.

In the case of the United States, they talk as though the problem of defense were wholly a matter of erecting barriers, like a boxer holding his gloves over his chin and defying his opponent to knock him down. Their credo runs contrary to every known rule of the manly art, which calls for holding the opponent at a safe distance and polishing him off there if possible.

Only complete failure to understand the implications of self-defense could give rise to the strange notions current on national defense. Chief and foremost of the implications is that once a defender has decided he is subject to attack it is his duty to hold the potential attacker at a safe distance. The whole thing turns on the point of whether or not there is danger of attack. If there is no danger, there can be no defense. But if there is danger, the best defense is counter-attack. An overwhelming majority of Americans will stick by the conviction that the fact of danger has been established: that the remaining problem is to hold danger at a safe distance.

THINK FAST!

Herbert C. Hoover will be 67 years old on his next birthday, in August. He has had a full life. He is the closest thing to an elder statesman that the United States has produced in this generation. No other man has had more opportunities to study the great problems of this century from a closeup position.

It therefore becomes a matter of special interest that Mr. Hoover, speaking Friday night in New Haven, Conn., had no advice to give his audience other than to think fast. Having seen the last war and its aftermath from a ringside seat, he did attempt, however, to tell his listeners what they were up against.

In all essential particulars, the current war and its predecessor are alike. Even the slogans are the same. It is reasonable to suppose that the aftermath will be the same, too—unless somebody thinks fast and bars hate from the peace table—or unless the United States is able to stay clear of direct involvement and preserve some of the calmness and resources needed to stave off post-war desperation. Total wars, Mr. Hoover observes, can end only by exhaustion or revolution on one side or the other, and "the victor in this race of exhaustion is only one lap behind the vanquished." There is nothing like hunger to breed hate and bitterness, and Europe is growing hungrier by the hour. Mr. Hoover recalls that after the Armistice in the last war when he proposed that Germany should be given food immediately he was shouted down. "Starvation is the mother of generations of hate."

It is a novelty at least for a public figure to admit he has no blueprint of the future—nothing but besetting doubts about those who pretend they have blueprints. And perhaps it wouldn't hurt more Americans to face the fact that whatever else the war may be about it also is about an absurd political structure in Europe that bred one war in 1914 and now has bred another.

SEAPOWER: CONTINUED

Even Walter Lippmann, foremost press spokesman for seapower, couldn't ask for a handier illustration than the latest reports from the founding Italian navy in the Mediterranean.

Italy was to furnish the seapower that Germany lacked; despite its formidable submarine fleet, the German navy is only a facsimile of the real thing incapable of tackling the British navy directly.

The role of the Italian navy was to close the Mediterranean to British shipping, thereby securing Germany's left flank. Its right flank was secured when Norway and Denmark were occupied by German troops.

But the Italian navy had been built and was operating on a theory that wasn't adapted to the role Germany called on the navy to play. Its function was to hit and run, in the belief that Italy's Mediterranean security required nothing more.

Another disastrous encounter with the stand-and-fight British navy, now believed to be conveying part of Britain's African army to Greece for the approaching war of the Balkans, deepens the impression that British seapower is the most important single factor in the war, unchanged by the new power in the air, or by the stronger power on the land. Ultimately, air may rule both land and water, but to date it has shown no capability of ruling either.

In the United States, meanwhile, only landlubbers ever lose sight of the fact that the American navy already is largest and strongest in the world and within five years will be larger and stronger than all other navies combined. When the histories are written and re-written and revised, the development of American seapower very likely will be one of the few things now happening that will really seem worth remembering.

President, Ministerial Association

Gracious Savior, we worship Thee for the serenity, the strength, and the love which was manifested in the honor of Thy trial. We thank Thee that when Thou mightest have rallied the legions of angels to Thy side, Thou didst elect to drink the cup Thy Father gave Thee and so to accomplish our redemption. Graciously forgive our littleness of faith in every hour when we should rely on Thy strength. Enrich us by Thy heavenly powers, in order that when troubles come suddenly upon us, we may be able to stand firm, knowing that Thou art at our side to comfort us with Thy love. Amen.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, April 1

A PARTICULARLY lively and productive day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. There may be a greatly accelerated state of affairs especially in the launching of new projects or in the inauguration of fresh ways and means for spurring static affairs into motion, possibly under great pressure and thoroughly practical tactics, in which skill, initiative and energy are brought into full play.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much activity and progress along really constructive and practical lines. Unusual enterprise and initiative will be brought to bear on new objectives as well as to stimulate stagnant or frustrated efforts. This may be under high pressure and with direct action, elders, superiors and those in power assisting.

A child born on this day should be energetic, practical, skillful and masterful although having a friendly, gracious and generous nature.

WAR-TIME FOOD PROBLEMS

Foods Reinforced To Overcome Deficiencies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We have not begun in North America to experience any of the discomfort of the food shortages which inevitably follow in the wake of war, and it is probable

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

we won't but we get a hint of such possibilities in the reinforced bread that is in the process of being marketed.

This idea was promulgated at a meeting last fall, attended by Surgeon-General Thomas Parran and nutritional experts, such as Dr. Tom Spies of Birmingham, Alabama, and Dr. Russell Wilder, of Rochester, Minn. I personally cannot subscribe to the statements some of these gentlemen are quoted to have made. Dr. Parran, for instance, indicated that 40 per cent of the people of the United States are not getting an adequate diet, and Dr. Paul de Kruif, who was also present at that meeting, said in print there were millions of people in the country who were suffering from vitamin deficiency. Both of these statements strike me as slightly exaggerated. But there are undoubtedly many such cases and the new reinforced bread is certainly adequate to supply their needs.

Vitamin Deficiency

Bread is particularly likely to be on the diet list of a certain kind of vitamin deficiency patient. This is the lonely person who "hatches" it and prepares his own meals. The consequence is he is likely to eat processed food—crackers and oleomargarine and coffee and bread. During the days before much was known about vitamins, the food industry was very proud of the improvements they made in processing such foods. It must be admitted that modern fine, white, miller's flour is very delicious. The only thing is that we have found that, this processing removes many of the valuable minerals and vitamins. Now the Surgeon-General's office, with the cooperation of the millers, has proposed to add thiamine chloride (B1), which is found in the roughage elements of the food and so often missing from processed foods. They also add iron and nicotinic acid, which latter is the element which prevents pellagra.

Other examples of this tendency is the present custom of adding Vitamin D to milk and Vitamin A to oleomargarine. Thus people on a limited budget can get foods that are as rich in vitamins as the more highly priced foods.

Experience in the immediate past has shown the value of these precautions.

The defeat of the Germans in 1918 is said to have been partly due to malnutrition. The rout of the Italians at Caporetto in October, 1917, followed the drastic reduction in the army ration which had been put in effect in February.

OUR READERS

STREET REPAIRS

Editor, The News: For the past several weeks some sections of Buckeye ave. have been a most impassable. Residents have had to pay expensive repair and towing charges because of the deep mud and ruts. Complaints to the city have gone unheeded and no repair on it has been forthcoming. As taxpayers, the residents on this street have the right to expect the same service that other taxpayers get. As it is, the street has not even been graded since the summer of 1938 and there is not one single fire plug on the entire street.

What do we have to do to get a little attention from the city?

A PRELUDE

CHAPTER THIRTY

She secret service man looked away from her as she studied the misery of his expression with eyes that held infinite compassion.

"What would your uncle say?" Klaffer hedged. "What would all your family and friends say to the very idea of our marriage?"

"Please do not fence with me, Siegfried," Adelheid implored.

He turned to her, his face stern. "What would Prince Max say?" he demanded doggedly.

Her bare shoulders shrugged slightly. "What does it matter if he is against it?"

"Then he has said something?" She smiled faintly. "He said you were impudent."

"He was right," the pseudo-Siegfried nodded gloomily.

The girl took him ever so gently by the shoulders and looked into his face. Klaffer clenched his fists to prevent himself from taking her in his arms.

"Are you not behaving like a child Siegfried?" she asked. "Is it that you feel your origin is more obscure than mine and for that reason you have a silly feeling of unworthiness?"

To her surprise he shook his head; the face he raised to hers was stamped with a certain pride.

"No Adelheid," he said quietly. "My race is as old as yours."

"Who are you then?" she asked vehemently. "For I have a right to know, Siegfried. Please tell me. Have I not come here and stripped myself of pride because I love you? Please, please explain your strange..."

She cut off her plea as Klaffer rose dizzily to his feet and stood with his back to the mantelpiece. His face was deathly white, his eyes those of a man who had undergone long torture. He did not look at her.

"If the gracious Countess would go," he said stiffly.

She shrank back into her chair as though he had slapped her across the face. Her mouth trembled pitifully. For a moment she closed her eyes and seemed as if she were about to faint. Then she rose and, taking her coat from the chair upon which it was lying, went from the room and from the apartment.

The closing of the front door was like the click of a pistol, on a prisoner's fetters and Siegfried Klaffer gave a shuddering sigh, sank into a chair, and buried his face in his hands.

Charley Stigger, alias Stains, alias Matthew Beef, grimly held the big lorry on the exposed coast road, bearing steadily north less than fifty miles south of John O'Grat's. The Calhoun road along which he was driving bore the full blast of the cold wind which was coming from due east. An hour later, he pulled up at the garage in Wick and got a shock.

A little man emerged from the driveway, yawning and blinking up at him. Beef was alarmed. He knew the man.

Narky Joe Summers had spent two-thirds of his life in and out of prison and ex-Detective Sergeant Beef had once helped send him there. Beef had two days stubble on his neck, an old trenchcoat with its big collar turned up about his ears, and a flat gorblimey cap pulled over his eyes.

But Beef was taking no chances. He stooped as though to fiddle with his boot, drew his finger along the under side of the dirty dashboard, and smeared the smudge down his face from the inner corner of one eye past the mouth to the jaw. It gave him a sooty, lopsided look.

"Ello, there," cried Narky Joe. "Come on down an' av somethin' 'ot."

"No, thanks, cully," replied Beef getting the extreme London cockney wine into his voice. "Got a flask up here."

"Well, come on down anyway, an' show us your book."

"Naow," whined Beef, shaking his head. "I ain't movin' I'm too blime tired."

"Aw-right, ol' boy," replied Summers, accepting Beef's papers through the cab window "but there ain't no bloomin' shut-eye for you yet. Ya-got another three hours afore yer."

Beef nodded gloomily. "Yus. Fair crool I call it. Talk about union hours! Union hours me eye!"

"Yer get paid for it, don't yer?" countered the other. He came closer and peered up at Beef. "Noo bloke, ain't yer?"

Beef nodded and blew his nose into a huge kerchief, obscuring half his whole head.

"Come up empty?"

"'Stright," replied Beef.

"Now 'alf a mo' and I'll ave these papers signed so yer can cut along."

Beef lit a cigarette but quickly threw it away lest its glow give him away.

"Ere you are, chum," said Narky Joe handing up the papers. "Yer know what to do?"

Beef nodded. "Yus, but I don't know where to go."

"'S easy," replied Joe. "Yer take this road till yer get to a place called Reiss. There yer take the right 'and fork and cut along the coast. Then yer got Sinclair's Bay on your right. Long 'fore yer get to Reiss a bloke'll signal yer to..."

"What sort of signal?" interrupted Beef.

"'E'll stand by the side of the road, 'oldin' is two 'ands up with the palms towards yer. Then 'e'll lower 'is left and, and keep 'is right 'and up. Got is? Then yer take 'im aboard and 'e" do the rest."

"When do I cop a kip?" asked Beef. "I'm 'alf asleep as it is."

"'Nother three hours," replied Narky Joe. "When yer gets back 'ere, I shan't be about then. Beef was relieved to hear that. "But yer can kip down at Mother Strachan's near 'ere, I give yer a tip seeing as 'ow yer'e a new-comer. Don't go tryin' any fancy stuff with the two 'twists or else the ol' woman'll set yer to rights with the rym' pan. Them's 'er daughters, see."

"I'm a married man," protested Beef.

"Ah, that's just the trouble. Well, so long. See you in gaol!"

"More than likely," murmured Beef to himself as he got the lorry under way again.

In a little while Beef was on the look-out for his mysterious passenger. Soon he saw him and his signal. He brought the lorry to a halt and the unknown clambered up beside him.

"Your name?" snapped the newcomer, who was dressed in the clothes of a Scotch fisherman.

"Stigger, sir," replied Beef.

"Good," said the other, and to Beef the word sounded very like "Goot."

"From me now you will orders take," commanded the other. "Your vehicle along this road will proceed until I order."

"Very good, sir," replied Beef as he mentally noted the stranger was a foreigner. Then, he observed, "Nasty night, sir."

There was no response from his companion, who stared stolidly ahead.

"I said as 'ow it was a nasty night, sir," insisted Beef suddenly loquacious.

"So?" responded the stranger.

"Lumme, yer'e a talkative sort of cove!" declared Beef and shrank back as the other swung round on him, snarling, "Silence, fellow! You will complete quiet observe."

"All right, all right," grumbled Beef. "I was only tryin' to be matey."

"In this country people have no discipline."

Beef began to whistle through his teeth. After a mile or so, at the other's order, Beef ran the lorry off the road onto a bumpy verge, the thin bracken cracking under the great wheels.

"Here you will stay," said the other shortly as he descended from the cab. "All your lights extinguishing."

"Yus. But 'ow long—" "Silence," snapped the disguised Ernst Roiz, lieutenant in the German Navy, who disappeared in the darkness.

Beef waited half an hour. Once he distinctly heard the grind of a boat being beached. It was within a few minutes of this that a man appeared at his elbow as he leaned against the mudguard of the lorry.

"Lumme!" exclaimed Beef. "You didn't 'alf give me a start. What's up?"

"Silence!" snapped the other.

"Oh, it's you back again," grumbled Beef. "Aw right. What's the ticket?"

"You will onto your seat get."

Beef onto his seat got, waiting expectantly for what was to follow.

A number of dimly seen figures loomed out of the darkness carrying what looked like six foot cylinders between them. Beef craned his neck out of the cab to see what he could see.

"You will to yourself look!" snapped a voice.

"Timely!" answered Beef. "I ain't twin'."

"Stay where you have put yourself!"

Beef heard the tailboard of the lorry let down. Presently the men began to load though they made so little noise, they must have been handling crates of eggs. This loading continued for more than an hour so carefully was the mysterious freight stowed away.

"You will with your vehicle proceed," ordered Beef's passenger, climbing in beside him once more.

Red Cross Aid for Washington "Bomb Victim"

"Where to?" asked Beef. "Do we go for a spin across the blasted 'eath?"

"There will be no comics, fellow!" rasped the other. "You will in bottom drive."

"What?" breathed Beef.

"You will in bottom stay. No changing of gears there will be. With care you will drive, lumps and bumps you will avoid. Back on to the road proceed."

"Ere," said Beef, "why don't you drive the blinkin' thing yourself?"

"Proceed!" snarled the other and Beef proceeded since there is no arguing with a pistol which has one shot in the barrel and seven others in the clip.

Beef let in the clutch as gently as he could for he realized now what those cylinders must contain—nitroglycerine, the slightest jar to which spells danger with a very large capital "D!"

The veteran continued to drive with circumspection and in "bottom" gear he proceeded, the lorry grinding vilely on its slow progress.

Fortunately the journey was not a long one, two miles at the outside. They halted in what looked like the yard of a small farm and here the lorry was unloaded, the cylinders being handled once more with enormous respect.

It just Breathes a little Deeper and Wades In!

EVER stop to figure why Nature gave you both a nose and a mouth to breathe through?

Your nose, barring colds, does all right for ordinary purposes.

But go up against some heavy exercise — and you can open up your mouth as well and increase the intake of oxygen.

Your 1941 Buick with Compound Carburetion* works something like that.

Its "nose," which is the forward one of your two thrift-size carburetors, does a grand job of supplying "breath" for your engine on normal jobs.

But when the time comes that your engine has to dig in for a tough pull or a burst of power, then your extra foot-pressure on the gas treadle opens up the "mouth" and your engine "breathes" through two carburetors.

Simple, isn't it? Yet look what happens:

Your engine always consumes gas according to the need.

By simply taking it easy when easy does it and breathing deep when the work piles up, your power plant gets as much as 10% to 15% more mileage from the same gasoline.

That, in these days, is nothing to be sneezed at.

So why don't you get the whole story from your Buick dealer?

SHEER SILK CHOSEN FOR SPRING BRIDAL COSTUMES

Wedding bells are ringing merrily and will continue to ring—as the season promises to see more marriages than ever before—not including the usual crop of June brides. At a recent New York fashion show many silk sheers were shown for bridal clothes. Above are some of the models. The garden wedding found the bride and her attendants all gowned in silk marquisette, as shown left and center. In true southern belle style, the bride is wearing three petticoats under her white wedding gown, the first being a hoop skirt, the second of silk satin, and the last a matching silk marquisette with self pleated ruffles edging the hem and applied with real chantilly lace. The gown has pleated ruching edging the off-shoulder yoke, and butterfly sleeves. With it is worn a Mary Queen of Scots headdress with short veil and matching mitts. The bridesmaid is in yellow marquisette with long full sleeves trimmed at the wrist with beads, and worn with yellow horsehair hat trimmed with velvet ribbon. Right is another bridal gown of the same material. The lines of the full skirt are accented by vertical ruffles of cotton and silk lace, which trims the wedge neckline and forms epaulettes over the long, fitted sleeves. A pompadour bonnet is worn with this costume.

Public "40 Years" Behind The Artist, Is Expert's Opinion

Lynch of Poand, president of the art society, Miss Evans said in words what the artists tried, to "say" in paint, identifying herself and the exhibitors in "Art Today."

The lecture in the assembly room opened with colored lantern slides, chosen to clarify the difference between paintings that are art, and paintings that are reportorial. Paintings "in art" have a framework, the director explained, in which the artist weaves his lines and colors in and out, back and forth through the picture, as the warp and woof of the weaver.

"Into the framework the artist works an emotional quality. The artist is an interpreter, imitating neither nature, or other artists, nor even himself. He is free to rearrange, to discard or add to the content within the rectangle, that is his picture, to accomplish a satisfying unity and balance. Thus he builds the framework which is the vehicle that speeds the message to the observer."

The lantern slide pictures were selected from masterpieces of the last 500 years, which have the same art objectives as today's art, beginning with the early Christian paintings and ending with Grant Wood's "American Gothic." Several were paired with paintings described as like "news reports" and the masterpieces, "like poems."

The group progressed to the art exhibit in the pine corridor and reference room upstairs, where a lively discussion of the works developed between members of the audience and Miss Evans, who answered their queries. "Unfinished Arrangement" by Martha McCloskey of East Palestine and "Fear Rides the Land" by Minerva Lynch provoked special attention.

A popular vote of those viewing the exhibit is being taken. A ballot box has been provided at the library for observers to use in voting for their choice. Results will be announced at the close of the exhibit, April 10.

Proper Wheel Alignment Necessary For Perfect Operation Of Automobile

GEROTOR OIL PUMP USED BY CHRYSLER

New, Exclusive Device Has Advantages Over Previous Types

Effective lubrication of all vital engine parts in every phase of operation is insured by the new Gerotor-type oil pump used on 1941 Chrysler cars. This is the first pump of its kind to be installed on an automobile engine. It embodies several notable advantages over previous types. It was developed by Chrysler Corporation engineers and, of course, given the most exhaustive laboratory and road tests before being released for production.

The first advantage of the Gerotor-type pump is that it forces oil under pressure to the several engine parts at all engine speeds. By means of its special design it is able to exert a definite pressure on the lubricating oil even when the engine is turning over at a very low idling speed. This results in an adequate lubrication during a phase when some types of pumps are not able to do a satisfactory job.

The Gerotor-type pump has another advantage in that it is extremely quiet, due to inherent improvements in design. This quietness of operation is true whether the engine is idling or turning up its maximum r. p. m. on the road. Still another advantage is its extreme simplicity. There are only two working parts and both of these are moulded from powdered metal, known as Chrysler Super-Celite. The exceptional value of this material for purposes of this pump has been amply demonstrated.

LANDSCAPING IS HOME BEAUTY AID

Property Values Increased By Scientifically Designed Work

Salem has long been known as one of the most beautiful cities in the state. While this is due to a number of reasons, not the least is the beauty of its homes and streets, and the growing consciousness on the part of home owners to beautify their grounds.

Science Is Applied One of the major developments in the beautification of these grounds has been the application of scientific landscape architecture within the last few years. This city is fortunate in having among its business men, such firms as Cope Bros. & Fultz whose business is scientific landscape architecture. Landscaping requires an immense amount of knowledge about a number of subjects. In addition to being thoroughly versed in the study of plant structure and growth, the efficient landscape architect must know chemistry of the soil, geology, geometry, seismology.

He must know something of architecture and building materials, of furniture and colors in relation to one another. He must be a business man, a scientist, an artist, all rolled into one.

Not Expensive

Because of its being such a highly specialized art, landscape architecture is not in the "mass production" class as regards cost. However, neither is it so expensive as to be inaccessible to the ordinary home owner. Many Salem citizens are investing money to have their grounds landscaped, and all of them feel this expenditure to be more than worthwhile.

One home owner said, "I thought that if my home itself were beautiful that would be enough. I never realized till now what a tremendous difference landscaping of my grounds could make. Now my home looks like a rich man's estate, and the beauty of the grounds is something that my whole family is proud of."

Appreciate Gifts Of Intimate Nature

There are few things, in the way of gifts, which are appreciated by the student at commencement time more than the intimate expressions of friendship and well wishes from family, relatives and friends.

This is the thought in mind as Art, the Jeweler prepares this service for folks of the Salem district. Commencement in High school and college circles is just two months away. It is time now to make gift selections, either for the student who is completing his work or for the high school boy or girl who is planning to go on to college.

Gifts can be utilitarian as well as decorative. This is seen in the many beautiful items such as small radios, pen and pencil sets, watches of various types, rings, jewelry and other articles. It is a good time now to stop in at Art's, inspect the fresh stock there and make selections. You may have any item laid away and you can use Art's budget payment plan.

Theatre Attractions

A story about a handsome young woman—she snake expert and a beautiful, calculating card harp brings Henry Fonda and Barbara Stanwyck together again on the screen. "The Lady Eve" shows at the State tonight and Tuesday. Directed by Preston Sturges, the comedy is slick entertainment. Sturges, young writer-director, who has turned out hits in "The Great McGinty" and "Christmas in July", does even better in his newest film.

The supporting cast includes William Demarest, Charles Coburn, Eugene Palette, Eric Blore, Melville Cooper, Martha O'Driscoll, Janet Beecher, Luis Alberni and Dorra Clement. The story begins with the meeting, on board a luxury liner, of Fonda, the explorer bringing home his latest batch of snakes from the Amazon, and Miss Stanwyck, leader of a trio of card sharps which includes her father and a confidence man.

Deciding he will be rich pickings, the trio entice him into a game of cards, let him win a little and are about to fence him well when she discovers she's in love with the explorer. Before she can confess her past and announce her reform he has learned her profession and, crushed, has gone to his Connecticut home.

Determined on revenge she gets herself introduced to his family and their wealthy friends as an English noblewoman. The explorer believes she resembles the girl he is in love with and marries her, learning too late of her duplicity. He leaves her and plans to return to his beloved jungles. On board the cruise ship again he is forlorn until he discovers her still pursuing him.

DRIVING STRAIN IS UNNECESSARY

Modern, Effective Alignment Service Provided At Grate's Garage

Mr. Motorist, how long has it been since you have had your car tested for alignment? Are wheels on your automobile straight and in perfect balance?

Attention to those car conditions is an important safety and economy measure which should not be neglected. Auto and trucks without good frame and wheel alignment and balance provide a driving strain of which the operator is unaware until adjustments have been made.

Complete Equipment

The E. L. Grate Motor Co., local Ford Dealer has the complete Bee-Line equipment—frame straightening, wheel balance, wheel straightening and hub straightening. These famous services give Grate's a complete one-stop accommodation for the driver whose car is damaged in a mishap.

A Bee-Line check-up of frame and wheels will save the car owner in the wear, eliminate shimmy and hard steering and make the car safer. This is the right time of year to have a check—after that skidding and traveling in icy ruts this past winter.

It costs so little for this alignment job at Grate's that no motorist can afford to neglect such safety attention for his car. Complete information will be given at the show on S. Ellsworth ave.

The Bee-Line equipment eliminates the human element of inaccuracy and corrects troubles on the first investigation. Grate's shop has a man in charge of this work who has been especially trained to handle the equipment. It makes possible the straightening of axles in car frames without removing the frame. One hundred per cent correct alignment is assured.

Takes Any Model

All sizes and types of wheels for cars and trucks can be adjusted in the new equipment at Grate's. Any make or model of car can be checked on the Bee-Line frame straightening device. No heat is used in this work and yet factory precision can be obtained.

If the car "shimmies" at any speed or tires are wearing unevenly, no delay in driving to Grate's shop should be permitted. There is no excuse for endangering a number of lives or of driving without the utmost pleasure and comfort.

Grate's handles all types of body straightening, glass replacement, door repair and interior work. Regardless of what happens to an auto body, Grate can repair the damage and make the auto look like new.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 31.—(The Special News Service)—Week's wash, Max Baer has had $350 against $500 he stops Lou Nova in four heats and is looking for more. Looks like the Dodgers are all set to join the Cubs, White Sox, Pirates and Athletics on the coast next spring—Santa Barbara, Cal. Coach Bernie Bierman will give the double-O to more than 100 Minnesota football candidates when spring drills start today. Jack Russell, Brooklyn's batting practice pitcher, now wears No. 16 which formerly decorated the broad back of Van Mungo. Elsie Mae Rosebloom created before one of the English classes at Pitt the other day.

Today's Guest Star
Tom Meany, N. Y. PM: Van Mungo, whose Havana escapade got a two-page spread in Sunday's N. Y. Daily News, holds a distinction enjoyed by no one else in America. Larry MacPhail won't talk to him.

Tattle Tales
Fritzie Zivio is getting in bad rapidly the way he is playing around with those set-ups they're feeding him. Bill McKennie's son, Tommy, has formed a dance band in Pittsburgh. Leo Durocher says he wouldn't trade his No. 1 outfielder—Joe Medwick, Pete Reiser and Paul Waner—for any other in the National league. Baer vs Nova Friday will be televised to a nearby Broadway theater. Mike Jacobs figures that by June armchair customers within a radius of 900 miles of New York will be able to see Louis vs Conn. Abe Simon is the N. Y. World-Telegram's "star of the week."

Sports Cocktail
What's this about the Yanks trying to get Buddy Hassett as a stand-in for Flash Gordon? The boys down at the Pensacola naval air base want something said about their basketball team which has won 30 in a row—and here it is. The Stevens brothers have taken over the concessions at Churchhill Downs and will make their first real killing there on the derby. Jack Kearns has added Lee Savold to his traveling troupe which includes Melio Bettina and Pat Conkey. Champion Diver Helen Conkovich, held first place in the aquatics to remain an amateur, works nights as an accountant in a San Francisco hotel.

It Could Be Worse
Steve Sunda shouldn't take it so hard. Not every guy gets a trip to Washington for a birthday present.

Week's Best Haw Haw
Billy Conn: "I am afraid one of these tinner-uppers will beat Louis before I get to him." Don't hold your breath till they do, Billy.

Brothers Lead A. B. C.
ST. PAUL, March 31.—The Vogel Brothers of Forest Park, Ill., held first position in the American Bowling Congress team event today with a hefty 3065 total. The Hermann Undertakers of St. Louis, in another weekend blast, rolled 3019. Floyd Reichard and Steve Peters of Chicago went into second place in doubles with 1300.

LEFTY GROVE, VETERAN SOUTHPAW OF THE BOSTON RED SOX, READY TO JUMP INTO THE CLASS OF PITCHERS WHO HAVE WON 300 GAMES

BOWLING RESULTS

Salem Eagles road team dropped a special match, 28-5 to 27-0, to a Sebring team on the Masonic alleys Saturday night.

The visitors really won the match in the first game with a team total of 1013, as the Eagles, after a poor start, took the next two games by close counts.

Mills of Sebring pulled up with a 235 in his third game to give him a fine 630. All of the visitors had at least one over 200 and three of them had two. Red White led the Eagles with a 228 in his second game and a 578 total. Mike Hutter had two games, and Bob Tubbs one game over the 200 mark.

Grate's Termites won two special matches over the weekend, defeating Zimmerman's Olds, 25-21 to 23-63, at the Grate alleys, and the Columbian Firestones 25-18 to 23-15 at Columbian.

Spears of the Firestones scattered the maples for a 251 in his third game. Slagle of the Olds hit a 213 in his third game against the Termites while Bishop chalked up a 211 for the Termites against Firestone.

The Eagles, captained by Bob Tubbs, will leave Friday night, April 11, for St. Paul to enter the ABC tournament. The five-man team will be rolled Saturday night and the doubles and singles at 4:30 Sunday afternoon.

The team which has been rolling road games all season will make the trip. On the five-man team will be Bill Shepard, Red White, Ralph Gregg, Bob Tubbs and Mike Hutter. Pete Bonnell will make the sixth man, to roll in the doubles and singles.

The bowlers expect to return home Tuesday, April 15. The Sebring team which rolled the Eagles Saturday night is scheduled for the ABC tournament the week following the Eagles' appearance. Harry Calladine of Damascus will bowl with the Sebring five.

With only a few more weeks in the regular schedules this season, league bowlers of Salem are keeping their eyes on high marks in the hope of upsetting the present leaders. In all the leagues at both Masonic and Grate alleys only a few changes in records have been made in recent weeks. Records to date follow:

YANKEES DISPLAY OLD HITTING FORM IN CITRUS LEAGUE

Rizzuto's Draft Deferment Boosts New Yorkers' Chances

Associated Press Sports
All is confusion in the grapefruit league as no doubt the baseball people wish it, and you still can't tell the names, number and salaries of players from a box score.

But anybody who can skim through McGuffey's third reader is welcome to try reading between the lines.

The New York Yankees mean business and have shown it by taking over the lead in the citrus circuit. They have won 15 of 20 games. Rookie Phil Rizzuto has hit safely in 14 consecutive games and been deferred by his local draft board. The rest of the American league might as well start cringing.

The opening of the major league season still is two weeks away, but the Philadelphia Athletics already are in a slump. After winning 13 of their first 16 exhibitions, they lost four of five last week.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who had their team all set on paper during the winter, are shuffling their cards like a magician. Don Padgett, who was going to return to the outfield, again is a catcher. There's a new infield combination every other day. Leftfield was to be the exclusive property of rookie Harry Walker, but Ernie Koy now is there most often.

The Cincinnati Reds have done better than any other National league club, winning 12 and losing 7, but Catcher Ernie Lombardi still hobbles on that injured ankle and Pitcher Paul Derringer is home nursing a pain in his groin from being hit by a batted ball.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Manager Casey Stengel of the Boston Bees was peeved at the 18-2 drubbing his lads took from the St. Louis Browns yesterday, but remarked that the St. Louis hitting certainly helped his outfielders get into shape.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla.—Frank Crespi is the top card in the St. Louis Cardinals' celebrated shuffled, infield right now. A 301 hitter at Rochester last season, he's shown promise this spring bashing out a double with the bases full as his latest effort.

LONGVIEW, Tex.—They're still the Daffy Dodgers. In yesterday's game with the Dallas Rebels at Fort Worth, they pulled the unique feat of having three men retired in one inning without anyone officially being at bat. Joe Medwick, Cookie Lavagetto and Dolph Camilli all walked and were thrown out trying to steal second.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Mc McCormick, husky speedster who broke into the Cincinnati Reds' outfield last year, is sure of his garden patch this season. Not only so he is performing well this spring but he stands in well with the front office. He was the first Redleg to sign his 1941 contract and he got a $1,000 pay boost when he reported at camp a month ago.

Amateur Boxers Clash
BOSTON, March 31.—The nation's outstanding amateur boxers—145 in all—start today on a quest for eight National A. A. U. boxing titles.

Twenty-four of the 41 A. A. U. district associations will be represented in the tournament, which has attracted amateurs from Ohio and 24 other states.

Alliance Kegler Third
COLUMBUS, March 31.—Fred Packey of Alliance raised third place in the singles standings of the annual Ohio Knights of Columbus bowling tourney with a 621 score over the weekend. Other top standings were undisturbed. Peter Kintz and J. Capurro of Canton rolled 1,117 in the doubles and Ziegler Ties of Canton posted a 2,632 team score, both below current leaders.

The two teams clash daily until the weekend when the Indians take on Knoxville of the Southern Association twice. The series will be resumed April 7, closing in New York City April 13.

HOGAN IS FAVORED IN MASTERS TOURNEY
ASHEVILLE, N. C., March 31.—Having scored his first individual victory of the winter and entrenched himself more solidly as the head of the cash-won list, Ben Hogan goes on to Augusta today as one of the top choices for the masters' golf tournament starting there Thursday.

Several days ago 14 of the leading pros made Byron Nelson their choice to win the masters, with Sam Snead second and Hogan third. But the fact that Hogan proved in yesterday's final rounds of the "Land of the Sky" open that he can come from behind under pressure is likely to make him a dangerous man all the way.

He rallied for a two-under-par closing 69 that beat Lawson Little by two shots despite a three-over-par 7 on the sixth hole that made him so mad he determined to do all-out for the $12,000 top prize so he could spend the money to dynamite the green on which he four-putted.

Hogan, with a 284, was 11 shots over his 1940 winning total. Little was 283, Lloyd Mangrum 289, Craig Wood 290 and Sam Byrd, Sam Snead and Jimmy Thompson 291. Only 18 men broke 300.

Hubbard I.O.O.F. Crowned "Little Cities" Champions, Edging Hainan's 51 to 50

Salem Team Puts Up Grand Fight Before Losing To Visiting Sharpshooters; Gray and Brown Star For Finalists; Parma Heights Wins

The Hubbard I. O. O. F. sharpshooters were crowned as the new Little Cities tourney champs Saturday night when they edged Hainan's Restaurant, 51-50, at the Memorial building, in one of the most exciting bal games that the fans have ever witnessed in a "Little Cities" meet.

The Hubbard crew, paced by Wyndol Gray, Akron South star and All-Ohioan, who racked up 24 points, maintained a slight lead over the Salem boys during most of the fray, but the way both teams were dumping in the buckets from all angles of the floor, it was anyone's game up until the closing buzzer.

Herbert Brown, Quaker High coach, sparked the Hainan five with his long shots that accounted for 19 markers. Bob Jeffries, beside fighting for rebounds under the hoop, found time to chalk up 14 counters. Simpson and Zimmerman aided the Hubbard cause with 10 tallies each.

Hubbard led 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and 30-26 at halftime. Hainan's continued on their heels during the third period, trailing 39-37, and the battle of buckets continued through the final stanza.

The Hubbard boys were deserving of the beautiful trophy awarded them by Tourney Manager Joe Kelley. Their lightning attack sank New Brighton, 62-45, in the first round, downed a good Dover team, 63-43, in the second round, and swamped Parma Heights, 66-47, in the semi-finals.

It is evident by these one-sided scores that Hainan's outfit, which was composed of Brown, Jeffries, Kenny Shears, Ed Wims, Del Schaeffer, Dinty McLaughlin, Bill Schaeffer, Tom Nedelka, Les Knepp and Jim Dickey, played some real basketball in the finals.

Hainan's listed wins over Garrettsville, 59-27; Canton Township, 40-38; and Parma, 39-25. Tom Nedelka was the hero of the Canton tilt when he connected on a long break in the last seconds to break a 38-38 tie just as the game ended.

Heights Wins Consolation
In the consolation game, Parma Heights downed Parma, 54-44. The winners were led by George Rung, Miami U. star who collected 17 points. Ricelle and Batean were next with 12 and 10 markers, respectively. Icafeals and Wolanski followed with 8 and 6.

There were 34 awards made Saturday night. Hubbard made a large trophy and individual prizes as the champs. Hainan's were given a slightly smaller trophy and individual silver awards. Both of the consolationists received trophies and individual prizes.

Wyndol Gray was voted as the most valuable player of the tournament although he received a lot of competition from Herb Brown. Gray was awarded a trophy along with a good-looking sweater for being picked on the all-tourney team.

Other players who were given sweaters for rating all-tourney classification were Brown, Shears and Jeffries of Hainan's Rung and Ricelli of Parma Heights, Swihart of Parma; Fryer of Louisville, and Simpson and Flanders of Hubbard.

ens the vital continuity of production, but it challenges the nation's domestic authority weakens respect of labor for the national aims, and destroys the sense of unity and common effort."

Speed Recommended

The report, signed by Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.) as chairman and Senator Thomas (D-Utah) recommended speedier "adjudication and settlement" of court and labor board cases involving collective bargaining issues to avoid resort to "novel substantive measures."

"The benefits to be gained by collective bargaining in this period of defense activity," it said, "may evaporate before the present procedures of the labor board and the courts have reached a final adjudication of the rights involved."

"Wholehearted and prompt compliance with the mandate of the National Labor Relations Act once it is interpreted and applied should be sufficient to avert interruptions of production in such cases."

The committee limited its study to strikes in the plants of the three companies at Monroe, Mich.; Youngstown, Warren, Canton, and Massillon, Ohio, and Johnstown, Pa.

STOPPAGE IN COAL FIELDS LOOMING

"Only A Miracle" Can Halt Walkout, Says Mediation Chieftain

"Only a miracle can prevent the work stoppage," said unofficial spokesmen for both sides, declaring negotiations were as hopelessly tangled over the question of wages as the 31-day increase to $7 demanded by the union—as when they began.

Keep Maintenance Crews
Simultaneously with the appearance of Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. labor department conciliation service, negotiators announced that even without a new pact maintenance crews would be kept on the job to prevent the mines from flooding.

Ezra Van Horn, Cleveland coal executive and chairman of the joint wage conference, said that no single point of the miners' demands had been agreed upon, but added that the provision for maintenance men did not necessarily indicate a deadlock at present.

Besides the wage increase, the miners seek 200 guaranteed working days a year and two weeks' annual paid vacations. The Appalachian contract would be the basis of similar contracts for the outlying soft coal areas where 120,000 additional miners work.

Encouragement

SPOKANE—Disgraced after a poor 9-hole round, R. R. Rogers told his golf partners he would try just one more shot before quitting the game forever.

He didn't quit. The shot was a hole-in-one.

YOUNGSTOWN, March 31.—Youngstown police today warned student hitch-hikers that from now on they'll thumb rides to the police station. Chief John W. Turnbull declared the action is a safety measure.

AXIS SHIPS TAKEN ON ORDER OF FDR

Roosevelt Heads Toward Capital To Push Lend-Lease Program

one Italian ship called the step "an act of war."

In all, some 300,000 tons of shipping were taken into protective federal custody by the coast guard in a rapid-fire series of operations from New England to the gulf coast and the Pacific northwest. There were two German ships, 28 Italian and more than 30 of Danish registry.

Twenty of the Italian ships, officials said, had been put "completely out of business" and Capt. Ranise Ernesto of the Italian freighter Mongiola, taken over at Galveston, Texas, said he had received orders from the Italian naval attaché at Washington to destroy the machinery of his ship. Informed of this statement, the naval attaché refused to discuss the subject.

Fel'ow U. S. Example

Officials here were of the opinion that there was good ground for the belief that other hemisphere nations would follow the example of the United States in taking over their harbors as sanctuaries since the start of the war.

Chile took the lead in mid-February by seizing three Danish cargo ships. Other American countries have indicated a disposition to take similar action but were believed to have waited on a decision by the United States.

Germany has about 40 ships in Latin-American ports, and Italy considerably fewer.

The government here was believed to have acted primarily because of the reported discovery of sabotage but the decision may also have been influenced by the indications of a concerted German-Italian attempt to get as many ships as possible out of hemisphere ports.

Some Axis ships put out to sea from South American ports during the week end to try to break through the British blockade, and others apparently were getting ready to depart.

Naval Officials Make Discovery
The freighter Villaperosa, anchored many months at Wilmington, N. C., was the ship that touched off the surprising train of events, it was learned. On Saturday, naval officials decided that it was more desirable to have her moored some distance up the river from her anchorage. When they boarded her, they found her machinery completely dismantled.

Upon this discovery, the navy intelligence found other evidence which strengthened the suspicion that widespread, systematic sabotage was in progress, it was said.

The information was laid at once before President Roosevelt, and it was with his approval that the coast guard got its orders.

The government acted upon a World-war anti-sabotage statute which authorizes the coast guard to assume custody of foreign ships and remove their crews when a captain permits willful damage to the vessel. This law also provides that any ship that actually has been sabotaged may be declared forfeited to the United States.

Nazi Minister Leaving
Sidewalks in front of the German legation in Belgrade were piled high with packing cases bearing the name of the Nazi minister, Viktor von Heeren.

German news correspondents declared Yugoslavia's new premier, Gen. Dusan Simovic, had threatened to march into Albania if Germany attacked Greece. They quoted him as telling the Italian minister: "Yugoslavia is not going to be enclosed. If the Germans go to Salonika (Greece), the Yugoslavs must get to the sea by way of Albania."
